CITY ANNOUNCES WINTER RECREATION SCHEDULE

Parks and Recreation Department to offer a variety of youth and adult programs

Greenville, S.C. – The City of Greenville Parks and Recreation Department announced today its new winter recreation programming, which features 55 leisure activities and sports for both youth and adult residents and visitors to enjoy. The programs will focus on wellness, education and recreation and will be offered at five of its community centers and several athletic fields and parks.

“We are very excited about our winter lineup of recreational and athletic programs because our goal is to give the community a variety of opportunities to stay active and to have fun throughout the year, even when the temperatures are cold and the days are shorter,” said Pam Davis, Recreation Programs Manager. “This winter we are excited to not only offer programs that have become quite popular in the community, but also offer new programs, such as Youth Basketball Leagues and Clinics, Job Skills Training, Youth Boxing and Water Color Painting, to name just a few.”

Complementing the wide array of existing programs, the winter recreation schedule will also feature two holiday programs, Santa’s Workshop, where children can have their photo taken with Santa and make gingerbread houses, and Create Your Own Christmas Stocking, in which children will work with their parents to sew and design Christmas stockings.
